Presenter Bios:

Katie Johnson, MPA, is a Program Manager for AAPD's Summer Internship Program, Fall Internship Program, and Disability Advocacy Certificate Program. Katie's work is centered on promoting intersectional and cross-disability social movements that promote the principles of disability justice. They bring experience in justice-based training and facilitation, program planning and project management, and accessible communications. Prior to joining AAPD, Katie worked as a program specialist at the Association of University Centers on Disabilities (AUCD) where they provided technical assistance to the national network of UCEDDs. They coordinated technical assistance around equity, diversity, and inclusion and plain language, planned large annual events, and launched and managed AUCD's podcast, AUCD Network Narratives. Katie earned their MPA with a specialization in Nonprofit Disability Services from the University of Delaware. While at UD, Katie helped launch the Access:Ability Scholars program, serving undergraduate students interested in disability and justice. Katie's also a researcher, having worked with the National Leadership Consortium on Developmental Disabilities to research the state of the Direct Support Professional (DSP) workforce and as an early-stage researcher with the Disability Advocacy Research in Europe (DARE) Project, researching innovative self-directed support models for adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Outside of work, Katie is active in their community, and enjoys hanging out in local DC coffee shops or spending time in the woods.

Andrew Houtenville, PhD, is a Professor of Economics and Research Director of the Institute on Disability at the University of New Hampshire. Dr. Houtenville is extensively involved in disability statistics and employment policy research. He has published widely in the areas of disability statistics and the economic status of people with disabilities. He is the Principal Investigator on the NIDILRR-funded Employment Policy and Measurement Rehabilitation and Research Training Center. Dr. Houtenville received his Ph.D. in Economics from the University of New Hampshire in 1999 & was a National Institute on Aging Post-Doctoral Fellow at Syracuse University in 1998/1999.

John O'Neill, PhD is the director of employment and disability research at Kessler Foundation and has over 28 years of experience in vocational rehabilitation as a rehabilitation counselor educator, disability employment researcher, and advisor to state vocational rehabilitation agencies. Dr. O'Neill has been a PI or co-PI on six NIDILRR funded, five-year research and training centers focusing on TBI and community integration, disability statistics, disability employment service system, and how individual and contextual factors relate to employment outcomes among people with disabilities.

Elaine E. Katz, MS, CCC-SLP is Senior Vice President of Grants and Communications at Kessler Foundation. Elaine Katz oversees the Foundation's comprehensive grantmaking program and its communications department. During her tenure, the Foundation has awarded more than $49 million in grant support for national and community-based employment programs. For more than 25 years, Elaine has worked with non-profit organizations in the areas of board development, fundraising, marketing, and business development. Elaine often speaks about innovative practices for employing people with disabilities, authors/co-authors articles and papers on related topics, and is a member of several aligned organizations.

Denise M. Rozell, JD is the Director of Policy Innovation at the AUCD. Prior to joining AUCD, she spent fifteen years as Assistant Vice President for State Government Relations with Easter Seals. Denise was the primary resource to Easter Seals 75 affiliates in building capacity to increase awareness of and support for Easter Seals in state government. Prior to that, Denise was the Executive Director of the Association for Education and Rehabilitation of the Blind and Visually Impaired, an international membership organization for the professionals serving individuals who are blind or visually impaired. Denise holds a bachelor's degree in political science from Occidental College in Los Angeles and a juris doctorate from Boalt Hall School of Law at the University of California in Berkeley.
